A BRILLIANT WEDDING.

THE MUNSON-TULLER NUPTIALS CELEBRATED.

The Ceremony at Zion Church at 10:30 A. M.—Reception at the Home of the Bride's Parents—A Large and Fashionable Company—Many Out-of-Town Guests.

One of the most brilliant society events that ever took place in this city occurred to-day. This forenoon, in Zion Episcopal Church, C. La Rue Munson of Williamsport, Pa., and Minnie Wright Tuller, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ackley P. Tuller of this city, were married by Rev. Dr. John Cochman, rector of the church.

It was a pink wedding, and the church was elaborately decorated with pink. The altar was banked with pink roses and presented a beautiful appearance. The chancel rail was covered with fern and costly potted plants. The doxel curtain was trimmed with smilax and pink roses. The chancel railing was wound with smilax, interspersed with pink roses, and was festooned with pink sashes. The kneeling cushion was elaborately crochi, richly embroidered with a monogram of the letters M and T and a lovers' knot. Leading from the choir steps to the front pews was a carpet of smilax. Pink roses in profusion were scattered along the aisle leading from the choir to the chancel steps. The organ, lecturn, font and pulpit were elaborately trimmed with pink roses and smilax. The pews occupied by the ushers were marked with bouquets of pink roses tied with pink satin ribbons. Extending from the first pew on either side of the middle aisle, to the door, were pink ribbons, which were suspended from the door to the outer edge of the sidewalk.

Into this bower of beauty, filled with the perfume of flowers, the festal party came. Seven hundred invitations to the wedding had been issued. Admission to the church was by card only. While the church was filling, Miss Emma Bell, the organist, played "How Fair Art Thou," by H. Wendt, a march from Tannhäuser and "Song to the Evening Star," from Tannhäuser.

At exactly 10:35 the bride entered leaning on the arm of her father. Never was a bride lovelier or more graceful. All eyes were turned upon her. It was a trying moment, but the bride did not quail. She was handsomely attired. Her wedding gown was a Russian costume of cream white cloth and gold, trimmed with lace and natural orange blossoms. The gown was decollete with long sleeves. Her costume was regal—admirably adapted to her and she looked and acted like a queen. The bride was the prettiest seen in Rome. Her only ornament was a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of pink orchids and La France roses. Behind the party entered the church the organist, Mrs. S. A. Watson, began the Processional Hymn, 456, "Love Divine All Love Excelling," and the surpliced choir of the church, forty-two voices in all, entered the church from the middle aisle, singing the beautiful hymn. Meeting the bridal party the choir returned, leading the way, followed by the four ushers: J. P. Fredericks, William Gardner, Frank W. Owen of Boonville, N. Y., J. C. Wiley of Lancaster, Pa., and Melville R. Bingham of Rome. They were attired in black cutaway coats and slender trousers and wore pink boutonnieres. They were followed by the bride and her father. At the choir steps, in the order named, the groom and his best man, G. M. Sharp of Baltimore, Maryland. They wore black frock coats and light trousers. Boutonnaires of pink roses adorned the lapels of their coats. The groom and party approached the choir steps and were met by Rev. Dr. Egar. The best man stood on the right and the father of the bride on the left. Two of the ushers took their places on either side. The betrothal here took place, the father of the bride giving her away and the bride and groom promising to take each other for husband and wife. Dr. Egar led the way through the avenue of palms in the chancel to the altar. The choir sang Hymn 247, "Deign This Union to Approve." The bride and groom stood before the man of God, and the ceremony binding in the impressive service of the Protestant Episcopal Church was celebrated. Then kneeling they received the blessing. The newly married couple then retired from the church. As the bridal party proceeded Miss Bell played Lohengrin's Wedding March. While the guests were passing out she played Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The recessional was the Hymn 459, "Jesus Bids Us." The music was most charming and enjoyable. As the bridal party passed out the chime of bells on the church pealed forth the news that the nuptials had been solemnized.

From 11 A. M. till 1 P. M. a reception was tendered two hundred invited guests at the handsome home of the bride's parents, 207 West Embargo street. The spacious parlors were elaborately decorated with pink roses, smilax and the passion flower. Before the mirror was a most magnificent curtain of roses and smilax. Around the rooms was a frame of pink roses. The chandeliers were wound with smilax and pink roses. The mantels were banked with pink roses and potted plants. The stair railing was decorated with smilax, pink ribbon and pink roses. At the base of the stairs post was a bank of roses. The floral decorations were under the supervision of Hon. Morris R. Jones of Rome. Isaac Teall of Rochester was the caterer. The tables were decorated with smilax draped with pink sashes. The ices were pink. The candelabra were provided with pink shades The bridal loaf contained a silver sixpence, a ring and a thimble. The ring signified that the bride would be married within a year; the sixpence was for luck, the ring signified that the finder would be next of the party to marry, and the thimble was a useful reminding to the recipient that she would be an old maid." The wedding cake boxes were white satin, bearing the monogram of the bride in gold paint-work. The house was darkened and lighted with gas during the reception. Tables were located in the dining room and on the west piazza, where the guests were served. The bride and groom received their guests standing in front of the floral curtain that covered the mirror.

At 1:30 P. M. Mr. and Mrs. Munson left for the east on their wedding tour. The bride's traveling gown was dark blue Bedford cord trimmed with Persian lamb. Hat and muff to match. The bridal party were driven to and from the church and to the station in the family carriage, the coachman wearing bridal favors—pink roses.

Mr. Munson, the happy groom, is a leading citizen of Williamsport, Pa., and a prominent young lawyer. His bride was born and reared in Rome, and has won a high place in the estimation of all who know her. In society, in charitable works and in the Sunday school and church has maintained a high position. She has been reared in the lap of luxury and her slightest wish has always been anticipated and gratified. Her father's gifts to her have been turned. She has always been a womanly woman, one whom to know is to esteem and respect. Rome's best society was represented at the bridal banquet and Williamsport's has gathered one.

Mrs. Munson's trousseau came from Worth, Paris, France, and is most magnificent and elaborate.

The collection of wedding gifts was large and costly. The groom's present to his bride was a magnificent diamond pendant and old gold neck chain. The pendant contained a large white diamond of fine quality sizes. The bride's father gave her a check for $1,000. From the groom's father and mother came a costly repousse silver tea and coffee service. From the groom's little sons a repousse silver Louis Philippe toilet set in very handsome design. These were the leading gifts, but there were scores of others, all handsome and costly. Cut glass, bric-a-brac, Dresden, Royal Worcester, and Wedgewood china, etc.

The guests from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Munson, parents of the groom, Masters Edgar and George Munson, sons of the groom, Mrs. Henry White, Mr. and Mrs. P. Almy Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Miss Helen Brown, Master Ned Piper, Miss Elizabeth Covell, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. T. Ryan, Miss Florence Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Emery, all of Williamsport, Pa.; Mrs. John Brewster, Amsterville, Montana; Mr. and Mr. Walter Thorpe Babcock, Quinsy, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Munson, Bay Mills, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Squires, all of Meriden, Conn; Dr. A. B. and Mrs. Glonsinger, Lebanon, Pa.; Mrs. G. C. Merriman, Bradford, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. David Ellsworth, Miss Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. David Wadsworth, Jr., Auburn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Jewell, Mrs. Mellvin Tuller, Charles Tuller, Richfield Springs; Mrs. Claude A. Olson, Clinton; Rev. and Mrs. Dr. Bernard Schulte, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Warnick Brown, Major Wm. H. Bright, John G. Kasson, Utica.

On Saturday evening Mr. Munson gave a banquet at Delmonico's, New York city, to his best man and ushers. The groom's favors to his best man and ushers were gold scarf pins in the shape of two wishbones; also scarfs and gloves, as usual.

The bride's mother wore a gown of light gray silk, trimmed with gray chiffon and point lace, with bonnet of gold and jet; ornaments, diamonds.

The guests from Williamsport came here by special car, arriving last evening at 6:45. They will leave this evening. Their car will be attached to the 6:08 train.

Assault.

About 7 o'clock last evening, as Mrs. A. I. Webster of Mary street was walking down North James street, a man stepped out from the driveway on the north side of the residence of Mrs. L. A. Bellamy and caught her by the arm. She broke away and ran down the street. She informed her husband of the occurrence and he, with the police, made a search, but could not find the offender.

WESTMORELAND, Oct. 20.—Bronson Tyler went to Clark's Mills on Saturday morning last and spent the day in drinking and dissipation. Toward evening Patrick Fleming, from near the "county seat," passed him a little this side of Mr. Jewett's, near the mill, and he was on the ground beside the road. Returning about an hour afterward he found him there still, and loaded him into his wagon and took him to his home near Lyman's Corners. Mr. Lyman was called to assist in taking something into the house. Noticing that his right leg was broken between the knee and ankle. Doctors Worden and Buell were called. When the rubber boots were drawn it contained about a quart of blood and the leg was found to be broken in two places. The bones had been driven past each other, lacerating the skin and flesh in a horrible setting. His whole person was covered with blood and filth. Tyler said he had broke his leg by falling over a stump and the lacerations were caused by his standing on it afterward. When all had been done for him which was possible by the doctors, Mr. Lyman and Dr. Worden took him to the hospital at Rome.
